FOUL BAY CLAIMS TWO LIVES

Never Expected To Reach Shore Alive States Mrs. Bales

Threw Off Her Clothes as Gigantic Wave Approached, Swamping Boat, Declares Survivor of Foul Bay Tragedy

Rescue Was Within Grasp When Comber Shot Jack Rennie From His Boat; Mr. Hinder's Presence of Mind

"I was terrified, thinking of the kiddies. I never expected to see them again. The waves were mountains high, and it was cold, oh, so cold," said Mrs. Clifford Bales, 1840 Hollywood Crescent, as she prepared to leave the Jubilee Hospital this morning after recovering from her two-hour immersion in the icy waters off Foul Bay yesterday evening.

Mrs. Bales told a story of grim tragedy and gallant heroism, prefacing it with an expression of deep gratitude to Arthur Stott, who saved her life when her companion, Llewellyn A. Hinder, was drowned.

"I had become unconscious before he arrived, but I've read in the newspapers what he did and well—words fail me," she said in referring to Stott's fine deed.

In graphic language she told how she accompanied Mr. Hinder to Trial Island yesterday afternoon.

"The sea was calm and the spray didn't even come over the side of the boat."

"We loaded the boat with bark, dumping a couple of sacks loose into the bow and placing another two sacks on top and another pair of sacks in the middle."

"Mr. Hinder knew the tides well and he didn't think there was any danger. We expected to get home about 5 o'clock."

WAVES ROSE SUDDENLY
"Then the waves seemed to come up instantly. The little boat tossed about first one way and then the other."

"Slowly the boat began to fill with water. We had no balling tin so I started to bale with my cupped hands while Mr. Hinder continued rowing."

"I was just bending down once when turning my head aside, I saw a tremendous wave coming."

"In an instant I loosened the belt of my heavy overcoat. Then the boat capsized and we were thrown into the water."

"I slipped off most of my clothes down to my undershirt and it gave me more freedom. Mr. Hinder had on his overcoat and I told him to take it off in the water but he said he was all right."

SHOUTED FOR HELP
"Then I shouted for help over and over again. I didn't think anybody heard me and I told Mr. Hinder I would try to swim for it, as we were only a quarter of a mile from shore."

Saved Woman

ARTHUR STOTT

Of the six boats which went to the rescue of Mrs. Clifford Bales and L. A. Hinder, the eight-foot punt in the skillful hands of Arthur Stott was the only one which remained right side up. All the others swamped or capsized. Stott, fighting a lone battle, rescued Mrs. Bales.

LIBERAL WINS IN CALGARY

W. H. Ross Elected to Alberta Legislature; Lead Over Miss Turner, C.C.F., 1,799

Calgary, Jan. 16.—W. Harry Ross, standard bearer of the Calgary Liberal Association, today filled the vacancy in the Alberta Legislature caused by the death of the Liberal Party's former leader, George H. Webster. Mr. Ross triumphed over his nearest competitor in the by-election yesterday. Miss Amelia Turner, Co-operative Commonwealth Federation-Labor candidate, by polling 10,799 votes to her even 9,000.

Two other candidates, E. H. Starr, Progressive-Labor, and C. F. Jamieson, People's candidate, lost their deposits, being eliminated on the second count under the proportional representation plan.

The victory leaves the Liberal Party's standing in the house unchanged at eleven. The United Farmers of Alberta, who have forty members in the Legislature, and the Conservatives, with five, did not contest the by-election. The total of sixty-three seats in the house is made up of the following:

Had to Choose One So He Took Mrs. Clifford Bales

Arthur Stott of The Times newsroom, who played such a heroic part in yesterday's tragedy at Foul Bay, had just reached his home at 1949 Crescent Road at 5 o'clock when he saw his uncle, Dr. Fred Harling, and Lewis Clark, looking seaward through the glasses.

"Do you want to do something?" Dr. Harling asked his nephew.

"Why?" queried Art.

"There's someone in trouble out there," Fred replied.

Stott peeled off his coat and vest and pulled on a sweat shirt.

WEST-EAST DEBATE SLATED TO-DAY FOR OTTAWA GATHERING

P.E.I. Premier's Statement Western Provinces Have Been Wildly Extravagant Will Be Answered at Conference, Says Acting-Premier Hoadley of Alberta

By Sam Ross, Canadian Press Staff Writer
Edmonton, Jan. 16.—Charges the western provinces had been "damningly extravagant" will be answered in full by Premier J. E. Brownlee of Alberta at the Dominion-Provincial Conference opening in Ottawa to-morrow, according to Hon. George Hoadley, Acting Premier of Alberta, who addressed the United Farmers of Alberta convention here to-day.

Premier W. J. P. MacMillan of Prince Edward Island, in an interview in Montreal yesterday, was quoted as charging extravagance to the western provinces when discussing "national economy. Ontario and Quebec were carrying the load, with the Maritimes aiding to the best of their ability," he said.

"And that is one question that is going to be discussed at Ottawa, although it is not on the conference agenda," declared Mr. Hoadley in a brief reference to the charges when he welcomed the farmer delegates on behalf of the Alberta administration.

"Mr. Brownlee made a brief reply at Winnipeg yesterday to the charges by the Premier of Prince Edward Island, but he will make a full reply at Ottawa," he added.

In view of Mr. Brownlee's intentions, the Acting Premier refrained from any defence of the west.

DELEGATES AT OTTAWA
Ottawa, Jan. 16.—On the eve of the Dominion-Provincial Conference, set to open here to-morrow, delegations from all parts of Canada gathered in Ottawa to-day. Judging by the strength of the delegations it is expected there will be at least forty provincial representatives here for the conference.

The subjects to be discussed, Prime Minister Bennett will open a very interesting gathering.

PLANE MAY FLY 500 MILES AN HOUR

Langley Field, Va., Jan. 16.—The design of an airplane to fly 544 miles an hour, close to the speed of sound, 121 miles of the present world record and using existing engines was made public here to-day.

The design deals with air which gets "hard" under the compression of great speed. Present-day planes are said to stand already at the threshold of this obstacle to super-speed.

Gives Life In Effort to Save Others

THE LATE DR. FRED HARLING

HERO DENTIST WIDELY KNOWN

Dr. Fred Harling Widely Known in City; Was Fine Swimmer

L. A. Hinder Came Here From Korea Two Years Ago; Suffered From Malaria

Dr. Frederick Harling, who gave his life in an heroic attempt to save two drowning persons at Foul Bay yesterday afternoon, was born in Bradford, England, forty-seven years ago.

Dr. Harling came to Victoria in 1906, and became a prominent member of the Y.M.C.A., particularly in its swimming activities. He camped for several summers before the Great War in the well-known "Y" senior camp at the Gorge. During the war he served as a mechanic in the Royal Air Force. After the war he entered the North Pacific College of Dentistry at Portland and, after graduating, opened an office in the Foul Bay district. At the time of his death his office was at the residence of his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Stott, 1949 Crescent Road. Dr. Harling had resided in that district for twenty-three years and was widely known.

While working his way through college Dr. Harling served as life-saver at city bathhouse at the Gorge. He was instrumental in saving a number of lives of swimmers who got into difficulties in the treacherous waters near the Gorge Bridge. He was a very strong swimmer, and had passed several stages in the Royal Life Saving Society.

Mr. Harling is survived by his mother and one sister, Mrs. Stott, residing on Crescent Road; one brother, R. E. Harling, Winnipeg; one sister, Mrs. C. A. Smith, Massett, B.C.; one niece, Mrs. S. L. Simpson, of Massett, and one nephew, Arthur Stott.

Llewellyn Arthur Hinder was born in India forty years ago.

He came to Victoria first twenty-two years ago with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hinder, 58 Moss Street, and was employed with the city.

Later he became associated with the Standard Oil Company, and went to Korea for that firm. He returned here two years ago, and had been living with his parents.

Mr. Hinder was a powerful swimmer but suffered from malaria in the tropics, and was in a weakened condition physically.

U.S. Officials Ask Court to Rule Against Premiums of Standard of New Jersey

Washington, Jan. 16.—The federal government filed suit in the District of Columbia Supreme Court to-day against the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, charging violation of the oil code and asking an injunction against the company to prevent it from giving premiums.

The action, for which hearing was set for January 30, was filed on behalf of Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes, oil administrator.

The specific charge in the suit, first to be brought against a major oil company for alleged violation of the code, was that the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and its subsidiaries had in-argued a "boys' club contest" and had refused to accede to a request by the oil administration to discontinue the practice.

Dr. Frederick Harling Gives His Life in Vain Attempt to Save Llewellyn A. Hinder After Boat Capsizes in Sudden Storm; Three Persons Go to Hospital; Three Boats Capsize and Three Swamp

EVENING OF TERROR FOR RESIDENTS OF DISTRICT

Gallant Rescue of Mrs. C. Bales Performed by Arthur Stott; Others Suffer Exposure and Injury as Community Battles Ocean's Fury

The waters of Foul Bay, whipped to a fury by a sudden southwest wind, claimed the lives of two men yesterday evening and endangered six other residents of the district who sacrificed their personal safety in a bitter battle with the sea.

Dr. Frederick Harling, dentist, aged forty-seven years, of 1949 Crescent Road, collapsed after a courageous but unsuccessful rescue attempt.

Llewellyn Arthur Hinder, aged forty, of 59 Moss Street, whose body disappeared from a capsized boat in the middle of the bay, was the other victim.

Mrs. Clifford Bales, 1840 Hollywood Crescent, left the Jubilee Hospital this morning, recovered from immersion in the icy waters after being saved by Arthur Stott, 1949 Crescent Road. She had been Hinder's companion in the boat.

LEWIS CLARK, 1825 Hollywood Crescent, remains in the Jubilee Hospital suffering from bruises and exposure sustained when he accompanied Dr. Harling in a boat.

Hugh Valiant, 2092 Marne Street, is recovering in hospital from half an hour's submersion in the bay during another unsuccessful rescue attempt.

Behind this brief summary of the dead and injured is a story of heroism and tragedy which held the tense interest of the entire community for more than three hours, starting shortly after 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon and lasting well into the darkness when the last anguished cries of drowning men ceased.

COMMUNITY'S FIGHT
It is a story of community effort to save life, of courage in the face of treacherous death, of puny human strength challenging the might of the ocean, and of a man who laid down his life for another.

Three small boats were upset and three others partially swamped in the series of mishaps which started when a double-ended twelve-foot craft carrying Mr. Hinder and Mrs. Bales capsized at the start of a sudden squall as it was about a quarter of a mile off Chinese Point, at the east side of Foul Bay.

Agonized screams for help were heard from the shore, and Mrs. J. Kemp, a resident of the waterfront, saw the struggling boat. Frank Le Poidevin, from Gonzales Observatory, also saw them and raced more than half a mile to the beach. They sought help.

Mr. Le Poidevin put out in a small round-bottomed boat from the point shortly after young Jack Kemp and Hugh Valiant in one craft and eighteen-year-old Jack Rennie, 2064 Quimper Street, by himself in another, had left for the distressed boat.

The rescue boats converged on the overturned rowboat, Rennie reaching the scene first, only to fall in the water himself while in the act of rescuing Mrs. Bales. Valiant and Kemp saved him and his boat, but were swept away from Hinder's craft. Then the craft of Valiant and Kemp overturned.

From the shore within the bay, meanwhile, Arthur Stott set out in a small punt toward the stricken pair, followed in a short time by Dr. Harling and Mr. Clark. Stott reached Mrs. Bales and headed back for shore, while Dr. Harling, who was his uncle, continued in the hope of saving Mr. Hinder.

But the furious seas again won out and capsized the new rescue boat. Dr. Harling and Mr. Clark were hurled into the foam.

On the shore in the meantime was being enacted another thrilling episode. Cries for help rent the air, penetrating even above the roar of the breakers, which, at low tide, transformed the bay into a seething mass.

FAMILIES WORRIED
Mothers, wives and children of the men struggling for their lives, waited wet-eyed as groups on shore made frantic, but unavailing attempts, to procure other boats. Darkness had fallen, adding to the terrors of the wind and blinding rain.

Albert Bevan, Ross Street, and Harry L. Smith, 1810 Hollywood Crescent, Gordon Morgan, 1820 Lillian Road, with Arthur James and A. McDonald, who live in the neighborhood, were active in groups, assisted by police officers, Lanning, G. Clayards and M. Wilkinson of the city force who had arrived in response to a rush call.

Running backwards and forwards on the rocky and uneven beach on the west side they worked frantically to further the rescue.

The first to reach land was young Rennie, whose boat drifted across the mouth of the bay. He was near exhaustion when they pulled him out.

Contest On Dollar Plan in U.S. Congress

Hints of Republican Opposition to Roosevelt's 60-Cent Gold Content Scheme Heard To-day

Associated Press
Washington, Jan. 16.—Hints of organized Republican opposition to the new Roosevelt dollar, which is to have from 50 to 60 per cent of the old gold dollar content, were paralleled to-day by the disclosure the Federal Reserve Board had recommended the United States government take over all monetary gold.

Senate Republicans at a caucus demanded "adequate" hearings on the monetary legislation asked by the President yesterday, but they deferred taking any position. Democrats of both branches spoke confidently of early enactment.

Governor Eugene Black of the Reserve Board made a statement revealing the board's recent action. The stand was expected to soften some Congressional opposition to the federal government taking the profit resulting from dollar revaluation.

WANTS LEGAL SWEEPSTAKES

Three Are Operating in Victoria Now, Alderman Says

"There are three sweeps operating in Victoria at the present time. The government has tried several times to stop them but it can't see why not legalize them and keep the money in the country and devote the proceeds to hospitals which can well use it," said Alderman Walter Luney yesterday evening when the question of Premier Taschereau's sweepstake plan for education and charities was raised in the City Council.

At the request of Alderman R. F. Williams, the council deferred action until next week. It is already on record as favoring sweeps for hospitals, but may pass another resolution favoring Premier Taschereau's proposal.

"Don't do it. Stick to the boat," he told me. So I stayed with the boat. I appealed to him again to take off his overcoat, but he replied it was not necessary.

"Just as we were beginning to give up, we saw two boats putting out from round the point."

"In a little while a boy came alongside (Jack Rennie) and I swam to his boat."

"I put my arms over the back but I was so cold I could not pull myself over. The boy (Rennie) stood up to help me in and then another wave came and threw him out of his boat."

"The other boat, with two men in it (Hugh Wallace and Jack Kemp) went to help Rennie, who was struggling in the water."

"I saw they could not get back but I was so cold I could not pull myself over. The boy (Rennie) stood up to help me in and then another wave came and threw him out of his boat."

"The last I saw of him he was lying across the stern of the overturned boat. He was terribly white and he seemed stiff and did not speak much."

"I was so numb by this time I could not feel a thing. Then everything went black."

"I do not remember any more until I woke up in hospital surrounded by hot water bottles."

"I'm all black and blue now. I suppose it was from banging against the side of the boat."

"They tell me I was clinging to the boat for nearly two hours. It was certainly terrible. They could not have chosen a more appropriate name than Foul Bay for that place."

West-East Debate

Is Slated To-day For Ottawa Gathering

Branching out from the agenda prepared by the Dominion government, discussion is expected to traverse a variety of subjects before the delegates are ready to pack up and go home. Called to discuss unemployment relief, method of financing, particularly provincial, and the enactment of a uniform companies act, the conference will find itself with many additional items from the provinces.

P.O.E. QUESTION

British Columbia, it is stated, will ask for absorption of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway by the Canadian National. The Pacific province may also seek a royal commission to go into the treatment received by it from the Dominion, as compared with that accorded to other provinces of Canada.

On the prairies they want short-term agricultural credits, and for this demand there is some support in the finding of the banking commission that it should, at least, be investigated. Against the prairies desire lowered interest rates.

It's natural for children to have a "sweet tooth" during winter. It is the young body's signal for additional sugar to maintain balanced muscle energy and keep the blood stream at a comfortable temperature. Pure cane syrup like Rogers' is the ideal natural sugar food so necessary to active growing children, especially during winter months. You can afford to be generous with Rogers' Syrup, it is so economical.

Federal Ministers Reported to Approve of $100,000,000 Expenditure

Would Be Powerful Stimulant to Bring Country Back to Normal

Government circles in Victoria learned with interest to-day that reports in Ottawa are being freely circulated to the effect that the majority of the members of the federal cabinet are in favor of the Dominion Government financing a huge public works programme by a new note issue. A total of $100,000,000 is mentioned.

The programme, according to reports reaching Victoria might start in June.

Substantiation for the reports reaching Victoria was found in a dispatch to The Financial Post from the Ottawa correspondent. The dispatch says the proposed public works programme to be financed by the issue of Dominion notes without increasing the gold support is rapidly becoming one of the foremost issues at Ottawa, and it is regarded as probable that the Bennett government may make an announcement on the matter at the conference of ministers.

ELECTION FORECAST

"If the policy is adopted," says the report, "and the chances are deemed favorable at the moment, the tendency will be to go much more wholeheartedly into this form of inflation." Mention is made of the fact that many provinces have drafted public works schedules in anticipation of the move. Federal legislation would be necessary and this would cause the plan to be held up until June.

It is forecast that a federal general election would be held in August or September if the plan is adopted.

"The main reason why the proposal is favored here," says the correspondent, "is that the recent upturn in business has been so marked and sustained that it is believed that the application of a powerful stimulant such as the expenditure of scores of millions, would bring the country back to normal very rapidly."

W. E. Hoskins of Penticton, president of the association, who since he accepted the chairmanship of the growers' stabilization committee has been living in Kelowna, was on hand yesterday evening and this morning, welcoming the delegates.

Three years ago at this time, the association was meeting to discuss the central selling scheme proposed by F. M. Black, chairman of the committee of direction, which then ruled the fruit industry of British Columbia with an iron hand. The powers delegated to that committee, though deemed overbearing by many, were found to be still not sufficiently freed of loop-holes and Mr. Black concluded discussion is expected to traverse a variety of subjects before the delegates are ready to pack up and go home. Called to discuss unemployment relief, method of financing, particularly provincial, and the enactment of a uniform companies act, the conference will find itself with many additional items from the provinces.

Branching out from the agenda prepared by the Dominion government, discussion is expected to traverse a variety of subjects before the delegates are ready to pack up and go home. Called to discuss unemployment relief, method of financing, particularly provincial, and the enactment of a uniform companies act, the conference will find itself with many additional items from the provinces.

P.O.E. QUESTION

British Columbia, it is stated, will ask for absorption of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway by the Canadian National. The Pacific province may also seek a royal commission to go into the treatment received by it from the Dominion, as compared with that accorded to other provinces of Canada.

On the prairies they want short-term agricultural credits, and for this demand there is some support in the finding of the banking commission that it should, at least, be investigated. Against the prairies desire lowered interest rates.

Satisfy their Winter Appetite

Rogers' Golden Syrup

It's natural for children to have a "sweet tooth" during winter. It is the young body's signal for additional sugar to maintain balanced muscle energy and keep the blood stream at a comfortable temperature. Pure cane syrup like Rogers' is the ideal natural sugar food so necessary to active growing children, especially during winter months. You can afford to be generous with Rogers' Syrup, it is so economical.

POLICE PROWLER CAR CRASHES GOING TO RESCUE

Above is depicted the result of the sudden ending which the police car, containing oxygen tanks and a pump, had while speeding to the assistance of Dr. Fred Harling yesterday evening. The car was driven by Constable Walter Andrews who was accompanied by Constable James Peterson, both escaping uninjured as it slipped across Douglas Street and crashed into the front of Jameson's Electrical Store, at the corner of Douglas and New Streets. Immediately after the crash, which tore the front wheels off the car, Constable Andrews jumped out with the pump and oxygen, commandeered a passing car, and sped on to try and save Dr. Harling.

FOUL BAY CLAIMS TWO LIVES

Then Hugh Vallant and Jack Kemp, clinging to their overturned boat, came swinging toward the shore. Fearing they might be swept past the point by the tide, the group on the beach cornered a chain out into the bay. Kemp, who is a Sea Scout, left the boat as it got into calmer water and swam ashore, being assisted out to the beach. The chain of men went out to the painter, and pulled him ashore exhausted.

PROGRESS IN CHURCH WORK

Reports Are Presented at Annual Meeting of Oak Bay United

Progress in all departments of the Oak Bay United Church showed improvement last year, according to reports submitted to the annual congregational meeting yesterday evening.

During the year there had been an increasing number of people seeking personal assistance through contact with the church. Rev. G. B. Switzer reported, and the prayer service had proved a helpful factor, evidenced by the increase in its membership. He paid tribute to the organization and leading abilities of the church officials, and felt that the institution was well managed and directed.

A steady increase in the Sunday school membership was noted by Miss J. Smith, who spoke appreciatively of the work of the teachers and leaders. Mrs. Hall and Mrs. Patterson reported on the C.G.I.T. group activities, and

F. Hall recounted the Trail Ranger and Tuxia groups' work.

The statement by D. Stott showed average attendance at young people's meetings to have been twenty-five. Mrs. A. Tinker presented the financial statement of the Women's Association, which indicated a revenue of $561.

The Women's Missionary Society report, from Mrs. E. Gardiner, included donations totaling $340 to the Presbyterian fund from this department. The total revenue of the church during the year was $3,984. Mrs. Gardiner reported.

The following were elected by the meeting to serve three-year terms on the board of stewards: N. R. Stewart, C. A. Gibbard, Mrs. Hudson, Mrs. Gerry and Mr. Cook.

TWO-YEAR TERM FOR BURGLARY

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Jan. 16.—James Morrison, who pleaded guilty in police court to breaking into the home of C. S. Crossley, Wolfe Avenue, on January 3 and stealing a quantity of clothing and personal effects, was sentenced yesterday by Magistrate W. M. McKay to two years in the penitentiary. It was brought out during Morrison's hearing that he had served a previous term for a similar offence.

"I intend to deal very severely with cases of housebreaking. Burglary is a serious crime," said the magistrate.

C.C.F. AIMS TO EDUCATE

Must Prepare People For Change of Social Order, Says Young M.P.P.

"Educate, organize, act. Under our present system we have the alternatives of the road of Fascism or another Great War. In our education we not only have to carry on an anti-Fascist move, but also an anti-war one, and having educated against this, we must organize, and then, and not until then can we forge ahead."

This was the message conveyed to a packed meeting of C.C.F. supporters by Harold E. Winch, M.P.P. for Vancouver East, in the Chamber of Commerce Auditorium yesterday evening.

Mr. Winch spoke for about an hour and a quarter and after reviewing the activities of Premier Bennett during his western visit and alleging lack of action by the Pattullo administration, he launched into a detailed explanation of the duties of C.C.F. at the present time with the country in its present critical condition, faced with a growing move towards Fascism on the one hand and war on the other.

Even after the election and Mr. Bennett's western visit there were apparently some problems bothering the people, as evidenced by the size of the meeting, Mr. Winch said.

Before the election the people were assured that the present system was fundamentally sound. The people had expressed their wish and had turned over the government to generous Liberalism. He found that the government was beginning to economize and provide more work. The former, he said, was necessary because per capita costs of government were higher in B.C. than in any other Canadian province.

NEW POSTS CREATED.

They had to economize and at the same time start work and wages. "Now," he said, "we find something we have never had before, an assistant premier, not elected by the people at a salary of $5,000 a year, a new Department of Industries, formerly taken care of by a stenographer, and a purchasing agent who was formerly a Liberal ward agent."

Liquor board employees were being displaced regularly, he stated, the government apparently believing in the rotation of jobs.

He suggested the slogan of "Join the Liberal government and see Canada" for the new administration.

The C.C.F. had warned that present problems could not be solved by the capitalist system and now Premier Pattullo was realizing this by calling a meeting of western premiers. The Premier realized the British Columbia situation now and was going down to see someone who knew nothing about it.

NO RELIEF IN SIGHT.

There was no relief in sight as yet. Relief camps were still operating and more and more were going on relief in Vancouver.

He reviewed the Vancouver youth meeting with Mr. Bennett, at which a brief, containing questions on current matters has been presented. There had been 10,000 unemployed youth of B.C. gathered at the hotel at seventy-five cents a plate. The average age of the youth meeting, he noted humorously, was about fifty-five years.

When Mr. Bennett walked in, Calvin Winters' orchestra had played "Who's Afraid of the Big Bad Wolf."

For one hour the Premier gave a "beautiful discourse," Mr. Winch said, adding "one of the most beautiful hours' discourse on nothing" he had ever heard. The Premier explained at length, the financial situation from the beginning, dealing with the number of one, two, four, five, etc. dollar bills in circulation in Canada. The point he wanted to bring home was that there was $125,000,000 in gold now at Ottawa and that if left there for so many thousand years it would oxidize.

"Not one of our questions did he answer, not one ray of hope did he give us," said Mr. Winch, "he has nothing for us." "All he came out with that we could lay our fingers on, was that we were going to have a central bank," he said.

Mr. Bennett had kept constantly waving $5, $2, and $1 bills in front of the audience, and Mr. Winch said he could hardly keep his eyes off them, it was so long since he had had a $5 bill. Furthermore, he noted, Hon. John Hart also had his eyes on the bills, but "he didn't have a chance because I was closer to Bennett than he was," Mr. Winch said.

AGAINST CREDIT.

Mr. Bennett also was against issuance of credit. "What has Pattullo gone down there for then?" he asked the speaker. "He might just as well have stayed at home."

He understood that the Premier had drawn $1,000 for personal expenses before going on the trip and ventured that the whole trip would cost the people of British Columbia between $15,000 and $20,000.

FAITH, HOPE AND COURAGE.

Bennett had wanted the people to have faith, hope and courage. The people had plenty of faith but too much hope, he said.

He had asked these questions of Tweed-dee and now what did Tweed-dee have to offer, he continued, turning to provincial affairs.

"I have lots of questions to ask there," he said, "who have got all the new jobs? What are their salaries? What are they doing?" he asked.

The Parliament Buildings, he understood, was a hive of industry, with the janitors doing lots of office changing, making more work, but no more wages. One thing he understood the new government was going to do was to settle the land and operate the P.G.E. into B.C.'s hinterland, the great wheat-producing area of British Columbia. He had gone into wheat production figures in Canada carefully and discovered there was an annual surplus of 90,000,000 bushels of wheat. "And yet," he continued sarcastically, "the government is going to open up that great wheat belt and then pay off our bonded indebtedness on a far greater white elephant than the P.G.E. now is."

The speaker stressed the fact that too many people were satisfied "with just a job" under present conditions, and referred to his recent visit to Port Alberni, where all the people were optimistic because the relief lists had been reduced from 300 to 80 by the reopening of the mill and the supplying of jobs.

Striking a sympathetic note, he pointed out that these people were not receiving sufficient to meet living costs, and that the health of the children was being neglected to pay the financial irregularity.

He referred to the results of the provincial election in which a majority vote had been against capitalism. He urged action upon this majority and warned that if action did not follow and a systematic change was not brought about, there would be changes similar to those which had taken place in Italy, Germany and the United States. In the latter case, the people had found their "new deal" to be a "raw deal." Living costs had gone up 31 per cent and wages 11 per cent, equivalent to a wage cut, he stated. Some of the leading economists had admitted that inside of eight months there would be an open dictatorship in the United States, he said.

He cited the "blank cheque" power of Premier Bennett's as paralleling that of a dictator. He quoted figures illustrating growth of Fascism in Canada today. Fascism, he described as the "last decaying product of capitalism."

BUILD NEW ORDER.

The job of the C.C.F. was to build a new order of society, and it might well adopt the slogan of "Educate, organize and act," he said. "We are at the point where, if we don't move ahead to a new order, we are going back to another Dark Age."

R. R. Midgley, the chairman, explained that eight C.C.F. clubs had been organized in the city, which completely covered the federal constituency. It was hoped to continue the meetings weekly, and next week Rev. Robert Connell, leader of the opposition, will speak. Dr. Lyle Telford was to speak on February 12.

It was also the hope that the large attendance would continue to discuss election issues. A headquarters had been established at 1415 Government Street, where meetings had been held recently and public speaking classes were being conducted. He gave a resume of the current week's schedule of meetings at the headquarters.

QUALIFICATION MOVE BLOCKED

Council Defeats Motion Requiring Aldermen to Live Within City

Because he is the only one on the council who lives outside the city limits, Alderman Walter Luney took as a personal attack a motion sponsored by Aldermen John A. Worthington and P. H. Brown at the meeting of the City Council yesterday evening which proposed the council amend the Municipal Act to provide that the mayor and aldermen of a municipality should live within its boundaries.

"Aldermen Worthington and Brown want to make the council a closed corporation," he declared. "Some of my friends came and told me this was a personal matter between Aldermen Worthington and myself and I take it that way. Don't forget there are also several hundred people who vote in the city and live outside, and they will take it the same way. And I'd like to tell Alderman Worthington that a man from outside would have beaten him last election if he had not worked so hard to get the public works vote."

"I don't know what is behind it, but I do know that Alderman Worthington brought it up long before you were on the council," declared Mayor Leeming. "It is an old subject with him and there is certainly no cause for you to regard it personally."

Alderman Worthington, in support of the motion, pointed out that qualifications for both the school and library boards required residence in the city and this should be followed out with respect to the council. He said he had every respect for the judgment of Alderman Luney and had pleasant associations with him on the council.

Alderman Brown's view was that since the surrounding municipalities were dependent on the city for a number of services it would be just as well if outside men did not sit on the City Council. For instance, he said, a two-thirds majority was required to pass a by-law on second warding, so if it happened that Oak Bay had four men on the council they could block any measure themselves if it suited them.

"Well, why pick on Oak Bay?" retorted Alderman Luney, "surely four aldermen from Oak Bay would act as honorably as four from the city."

"Of course," he would. I was only citing an instance," said Alderman Brown.

"Then why single out Oak Bay instead of Esquimalt or Saanich?" asked Alderman Luney.

"Because it so happens there has never been an alderman from those municipalities, although there is nothing to prevent it," said Alderman Brown.

The council defeated the resolution after some further discussion in which it was pointed out the voters had the final say in selection of the council and if they did not wish an outside resident could turn him down.

Another motion by Alderman Worthington seeking election of all members of the council as aldermen and choice of the mayor by the council members instead of the general vote was also beaten.

FILM TEACHES FINE LESSON

"Wild Boys of the Road" Is Story of Present Day Youth's Combat Against Depression

A portrayal of social conditions in the world to-day and the possible results of this chaos to the rising generation was presented in "Wild Boys of the Road," an educational film presented yesterday evening at the Dominion Theatre to an invited audience representing the schools, social service organizations and the press.

The film will shortly be screened publicly here as part of a double feature.

The picture, produced in United States, tells the story of families, previously well off, who have been hit by the depression and whose older sons and daughters have taken to the road to alleviate the sufferings of other members of their families by reducing the number of mouths to feed.

The tale deals with two young boys in this position who left their country homes to seek work in the big cities, their mode of traveling being by means of freight car jumping. They arrive in hobo camps of the big cities. But there is no work.

Threatening starvation leads one of the boys to be an unknown partner in crime, for which he is arrested and taken before a juvenile court to face charges of petty theft, these occasions having been times when he had stolen to feed himself and his companions.

The kindly magistrate, however, gives the boys and a girl companion a "new deal" along with the "new deal" being administered throughout the country.

A NOBLE SACRIFICE

Off what is known as Chinese Point in the dusk of yesterday afternoon, Dr. Frederick Harding, a well-known dentist of this city, set out in a boat to try to save life. The details of the tragedy are already well known. Dr. Harding was inspired by the noblest instincts. He stood upon the order of his going; he did all that one could do. The odds were all against him; they did not deter him. He had reached the shore after his trying ordeal in the icy waters—made all the worse because he realized he had not reached the drowning man—and then collapsed. No finer epitaph could be erected to anyone than that "he gave his life for another."

THE OTTAWA CONFERENCE

One of the most important all-Canadian conferences to be called in post-war years will begin its deliberations in Ottawa to-morrow. All the provincial Premiers, several other provincial Ministers, and departmental officials will be there to meet Premier Bennett and the members of his cabinet. It is presumed that the opening day will be largely taken up with the customary opening formalities and the usual expressions of hope that much good may come of the business of which the agenda will be composed. Indications are that most or all of the sessions of the conference will be held in camera and that statements will be issued from time to time to inform the public of what progress is being made.

British Columbia has a more than usual interest in this gathering because it was the initiative of Premier Pattullo which was responsible for the meeting here with him and his newly-formed government of the Premiers of the three Prairie Provinces. It did not take many hours for the representatives of this province, Alberta, Saskatchewan, and Manitoba to reach complete agreement on many points of provincial and national concern which they considered ought to be taken up at a conference between all the provinces and the Dominion government. They drew up a lengthy memorandum setting out their proposals for dealing with the problems of the country as a whole, and they asked Mr. Bennett to call the parley which will commence to-morrow. The head of the government at Ottawa wasted no time in issuing the call and making the necessary arrangements—and the Premiers east of the Great Lakes signified their willingness to attend with equal promptness. There seems to be, therefore, determination on the part of all concerned to enter the gathering in a spirit of cordial co-operation.

The memorandum submitted last month to Premier Bennett has naturally given him a good deal to think about in addition to his own problems. We may be sure, too, that while the other provinces received with enthusiasm the news of unanimous agreement reached by Premiers Pattullo, Brownlee, Anderson, and Bracken, they will have their own ideas of what ought to be done to improve provincial conditions. The main point, however, is that Mr. Bennett has made this national gathering possible. The public will watch its deliberations—or as much of them as shall be revealed to it by official communiques from time to time—with the closest interest. It is expecting effective action and is obviously in the mood to sanction the employment of means which will go to the root of our economic troubles.

What may be remembered, moreover, is that while it may not be a very simple matter to work out all the schemes contained in the western recommendations, the conditions now existing from the Pacific to the Atlantic can be improved by remedies which only Canada herself is in a position to apply. It will be patent to all at the Ottawa gathering that there has not yet been any really concerted programme for the solution of unemployment. We have resorted to the dole in its worst form in the hope that world conditions would rapidly change and favorably react on our own economic structure.

THE CANNERS' TROUBLES

The canners of the Okanagan and other parts of the Interior for some years have been troubled over what they consider grossly inequitable freight rates which put them at a disadvantage when competing with eastern canners in the domestic market. A delegation met Hon. K. C. MacDonald, provincial Minister of Agriculture, at Vernon the other day and discussed their difficulties. One phase of the industry to which the delegation drew special attention was the fact that the minimum wage in this province is higher than in Quebec, and other eastern provinces. In Quebec, it seems, the canning product is considered to be the output of the man on the land and therefore not subject to tax.

The minister expressed his firm belief in the rightness of the minimum wage, fair distribution of labor, the efforts of the canners to secure as large a market as possible, and to give employment to as many workers as possible; the need for equalization of freight rates and in pressing for a fair application of the sales tax.

Dr. MacDonald has a lengthy memorandum over which to ponder, and as it is of general interest, because an important British Columbia industry is involved, we quote some of the main points of it as follows:

"The interior of British Columbia can and does produce fruits and vegetables equal in quality to any and has factories equipped to preserve these products as efficiently and economically as any in Canada, but our markets are restricted to a very small area because of unequitable freight rates and a higher labor cost than are enjoyed by competing sections of Canada."

"With regard to cost of production, we would draw attention to the fact that the government of British Columbia has an interest of over $5,500,000 in the farms of the Okanagan Valley through financing irrigation works, etc., and have admitted the cost of producing on these farms is too high by remitting to a certain extent the irrigation tolls to the farmers on an 'ability-to-pay' basis.

"In Ontario and Quebec irrigation is not a factor in the cost of production and lower land values and lower tax rates are enjoyed. This and other factors have resulted in the interior farmers having to produce tomatoes, beans and other field crops at less than cost in order to compete in their natural markets."

"The freight rate from Okanagan points to Vancouver on 24,000 pounds is sixty-five cents and the rate from Quebec and Ontario via Panama is forty cents for a lower minimum. The rate on a 60,000-pound minimum from the Okanagan is five cents higher than the rate on one ton minimum from eastern Canada and in many instances the high minimum can not be used by local canners without paying handling and storage charges in Vancouver, which is the same as an increase in rate."

"We can not understand why the railway companies are willing to haul a car of canned goods from Toronto to Winnipeg with a minimum 24,000 pounds for ninety-five cents per 100 pounds when they charge the interior of British Columbia producers $1.41 for the same minimum when the distance is considerably less, even on a minimum of 60,000 pounds the rate is excessive, being $1.34 from the interior of British Columbia."

NEW CONDITIONS—NEW METHODS

One of the reasons why the "New Deal" in the United States often seems confusing is the fact that the country is beginning to bring its idea of government into line with economic changes which took place several decades ago.

Our neighbor started as an agrarian nation, in which the great mass of citizens always could earn their living on the land if the government only would leave them alone. Some years ago it changed to an industrial civilization, in which the prime necessity of the citizen was a job and not a piece of land, but the general concept of government remained unchanged. "Now," as one commentator puts it, "we are trying to bring ourselves up to date. If the effort makes us giddy now and then, it is no wonder."

Edward A. Filene, the Boston merchant, recently pointed out in an address before the American Academy of Political and Social Science that the republic's delay in the accomplishment of this job led inevitably to the creation of that "invisible government" against which reformers used to argue so hotly.

Someone, Mr. Filene remarks, had to control the tangle in human relations which resulted when the agrarian order changed to an industrial order. "We did not believe that was a job for the regular government; so an invisible government took shape to do the job, and it did it badly, because no one understood precisely what had to be done."

The visible government, meanwhile, continued to try to keep its hands off all the developments of a rising industrialism. In doing so, as Mr. Filene remarks, it found that by keeping its hands off it forever was finding its hands full. And he adds:

Because it refused to deal with the causes of strikes, it was kept busy with their effects. Because it did not deal with the problem of unemployment, it had to deal with the plight of the unemployed. Because it had nothing to say about the distribution of wealth, it constantly was confronted with crises caused by inadequate distribution, which some stick-in-the-mud traditionalists still refer to as "overproduction."

What is happening now is simply that the United States has come to realize the necessity of a new relationship between government and industry. This does not mean that the industrialist will be soaked, or that a bureaucracy of busy-bodies is going to run the factories, salesrooms and banks. It means that our neighbor is getting squared away so that a full reaping of the incalculably rich fruits of a great industrial era at last will be possible. We should have a "New Deal" in Canada. Is Mr. Bennett the man to put it over? We are waiting for the sign.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

A JAPANESE PLOT
The Brooklyn Eagle

There is nothing very surprising in the collector of customs having seized Japanese printed matter prophetic relating a war between Japan and the United States, when that matter was entered at Honolulu. But it is surprising that an effort should have been made to introduce matter of this sort among the people of Japanese race in the Hawaiian Islands. The one obvious purpose of an effort to spread propaganda of this kind would be to prepare the minds of people of Japanese race in Hawaii for an actual invasion. We have reason, therefore, to suppose that some group in Japan seeks to do this. But we have no discoverable reason to suppose that the Japanese Government had any knowledge of what was done.

PUBLIC WORKS WORK
The New York World-Telegram

The country is learning another thing about a public works programme. That is, that it will actually produce jobs in large numbers. The figures on public works improvement have been made public by Secretary of Interior Ickes, the Public Works Administrator. About 3,000,000 men have been recalled to jobs because of PWA expenditures. Approximately 1,183,267 men have been re-employed through the Civil Works Administration; about 347,823 have been given jobs by reason of the creation of the Civilian Conservation Corps, and the remainder are at work on jobs financed by PWA funds.

TAXING TILL IT HURTS
The Providence Journal

The Economy League says that it believes "that the people are willing to make great sacrifices in submitting to new taxation, on condition that future expenditures are drastically cut and that they are assured that their sacrifices will accomplish the desired results." We are not so sure that the people, buffeted as they are by the depression, are in a sacrificial mood. But we feel reasonably certain that a tax programme that will serve requirements dictated by an honestly balanced budget will make the people realize as nothing else will to what unjustified and dangerous lengths the administration is going in spending money.

Every man is brutish in his knowledge; every founder is confounded by the graven image; for his molten image is falsehood, and there is no breath in them.—Jeremiah x 14.

Loose Ends

One is moved to compassion by the spectacle of the collectors of the loose ends of the world. The loose ends of the world are the people who are left behind by the progress of the world. They are the people who are left behind by the progress of the world. They are the people who are left behind by the progress of the world.

PATHEPIC

IT IS PATHEPIC to a kindly heart to read in this newspaper night after night of the old coins and paper money that collectors all over the city bring into the office so that the results of their long efforts may be made known to the public. It is pathetic, I mean, to find so many people in this splendid city devoting their God-given talents to such seamy work as collecting ancient money, which is of no use whatever.

The rage for collecting coins, stamps and things of that sort shows you just how slow is the progress of humanity out of the primordial slime, or at least out of the original burrow in the ground where we acquired the instincts of the pack-rat, which collects anything and everything it can find. I can understand a man collecting books, provided he intends to read them and profit thereby, or plants in his garden to watch them grow, or dogs or cats or even guinea-pigs or canaries. But it shows a complete lack of imagination and no sense of humor whatever when a man wastes a large part of his life filling boxes with old lifeless, useless coins.

Still, I suppose it is a harmless way to satisfy his acquisitive instinct. If he were more intelligent he would probably be out in the world of finance collecting modern coins, piling them up in banks and watering stock and contributing to the ruin of the economic system. On the whole, I suppose we had better not disturb the old coin collectors. They do no harm, poor fellows, and if it gives them any happiness to see their coins described in the papers, well, one can always turn over to the comics to receive one's confidence in the intelligence of the race.

HIGH-BROWS

YET I DON'T KNOW. Something seems to have happened even to the comics. Either I am getting old and cranky or the comics have become a very morbid procession. Since we went high-brow after the war and ceased to enjoy the old-time comics, full of good honest fun, which always ended by some fellow being hit over the head or kicked out the door—since then the comics have tried to become literature. Instead of cheerful, harmless crudity, they are full now of crime, murder, robbery, blackmail and swindling. The Gumps have become a dime novel wallowing in crime. Ella Cinders is always in deadly fear of her life. Boots and her Buddies have been dealing lately with crooks. This, I suppose, is an elevating phase of modern culture, but as an ignorant man, I preferred it when the people in the comic strips slipped innocently on a banana every day or chastely hit over the head.

PROGRESS

BUT I SUPPOSE it is all part of the general progress of society. Society these days is just getting itself on crime and murder and violence. The business of producing detective stories to satisfy this curious taste is the largest phase of modern publishing. Thousands of books a day pour off the press, each with a new murder and a new solution, until all of them are old murders and old solutions. The very best people feast upon them. The other night I dined with an eminent university professor, when I had expected to talk on the state of civilization but who, instead, spent the evening discussing on his favorite detective story-writers. And you should see how high-brow and snooty these connoisseurs of murder become. No ordinary murder, no usual solution, does for them. They have their castles and their cliques and classes. The highest school of murder enthusiasts, for instance, looks down its

But our private lives are our own and I don't propose to tolerate this attempt to commercialize them. In peering to become a mother, indeed! ## CHAPTER XXX

Dona could not take her eyes from Stan's face. There was something in his cool manner that made her wonder at him.

"Turn about is fair play," he said at length.

"I am doing just what I said I would," Dona unconsciously assumed a defensive tone.

"Right," Stan spoke softly. All of the tense wariness was gone from his face and his lines had softened.

Dona was expecting a shrewd attempt on his part to persuade her to free him. Of course he would try to talk himself out of his present tight corner! But she waited impatiently, but he did not speak for a full half hour. When he did it was not to ask for ease for himself but about her.

"You think a lot of your father?" He asked the question while his grey eyes held hers.

Dona was about to cut him off with a short answer when something prompted her to lead him on. "Father is about all I have."

Stan's eyes did not waver. He was sure she was telling the truth. He knew there was something wrong with her marriage though he could never hope to know more of that now. Swergin's gift story of protecting him did not carry any weight with Stan.

He knew the timber boss was at that instant rounding up his mob for a lynching.

"Why do you ask?" Dona wanted to draw him out further.

"I just wondered how loyal you were. But I am convinced," he hastened to add, as he noted a flush mount her cheek.

"You think father is unfair, crooked, and that mistake will cost you heavily," Dona spoke with simple straightforwardness.

Stan smiled a little and nodded, but he did not speak. He had all the information he had sought concerning the Delo Timber Company. He could incriminate Asper and Swergin, could make Dona's father almost as black as he himself had been painted. He had been of half a mind to tell her everything. Now he made a new decision. He would let Swergin do his worst without a protest.

Dona could not fathom the lean young man leaning against the wall. He seemed entirely different from what she had expected in the killer they had been hunting.

"What would you do if I loosened the rope at your wrist?" She put the question evenly.

"I would make a getaway if I could," he answered frankly.

"Why do you say that?" Dona flushed impatiently. "A white lie might set you free."

A white lie would have gotten you free," he countered.

"But I wasn't going to be hung," Dona could feel her control slipping.

"No, but you might easily have imagined a worse fate." He was not smiling and his eyes were clear.

"There will be a trial and you can hire a lawyer. The Blind River outfit will back you," she mused almost to herself.

Stan laughed outright.

"What is so funny?"

"There will be no trial. Swergin will see to that. Everything will be settled within an hour." His eyes met hers.

"You mean they will lynch you?" Dona could not meet those steady grey eyes.

"Just that."

"But Swergin came out of his way to hide you," Dona protested.

"Swergin came over here to catch me so that he would have time to get his own gang together," Stan spoke simply.

Horror filled Dona's eyes, then distrust and finally outright disbelief. At last Stan was playing the cunning game for which she had been watching. He wanted to work on her woman's tenderness.

"I can't believe that," she said.

"And I don't expect you to. I expect to stay here until Swergin comes with his men." Stan eased his tortured wrists by shifting his weight.

"If I believed that I would set you free," Dona met his eyes fairly.

"And I believe that, too."

Dona gave a little gasp and got up. She was in a position that tore at her woman's nature, but she also had a woman's instinctive sense of protection for herself. Stan was cunning. He had proved that several times. She walked outside the cabin, unable longer to face him as he stood there calmly waiting. Strapping through the brush that clung close about the door she thought she saw a man draw back into the bushes but could not be sure. Her mind was in such a whirl that she gave the fleeting glimpse but little thought. Probably it was a mule deer feeding nearby.

She entered the cabin again and sat down. Stan was looking out of a little window that let in a wide band of white light. He did not seem to notice her return and she sat for several minutes before he moved. When he did it was to smile at her.

"I'm sorry to be so much trouble to you," he said softly.

Dona moved a little but could not answer.

He seemed to have come to some sort of decision. "I'm really a bad actor and would have wound up this way sooner or later." He paused and smiled, a bit of the old humor coming back into his eyes. "You can always know that I had it coming to me several times over."

His words did not cheer Dona as a confession of this kind should have. Instead she felt her heart catch and rise to choke her. He was confessing, admitting everything, and still she could not feel the wage of anger and hatred that she had once felt for him.

Stan watched her through narrow eyes. He was wondering what she might be thinking. He knew that his resolve to make her think him guilty of all the crimes he was charged with had failed. Had he known women better he would never have spoken.

"I can't stand this any longer," Dona exclaimed. "I'm going to let you go. I hate you but I'm going to let you go."

Stan took a step toward him. Stan shook his head. "It's no use. Swergin has at least two men outside right now." Stan's eyes shifted to the window and she smiled a twisted smile.

"The dirty skunk is trying you out for his own purposes. He expects you to let me go."

Dona's eyes followed Stan's gaze and darkened with horror. Through the window she could see two men sitting on horses. They had rifles across their knees.

"I'll let you go and give you your gun," she cried.

"It's empty," Stan spoke softly. "Listen to me. Be careful of that man. Ride straight to camp as fast as you can. Don't let him go with you. Understand?" The sudden fury of his words made Dona start.

"Well, you sure kept him hogtied!"

Dona whirled at the rumbling voice behind her. Swergin was standing in the doorway, leaning at them.

"We'll just take him off your hands now. Your husband and your old man want you to gallop right straight to camp. I'll send a man with you."

Swergin advanced upon Stan. White-faced and shaken, Dona held her ground. "I'm going to ride in with the posse," she stated in an unsteady voice.

"You're going to ride on ahead. Ball is walking," Swergin growled.

"I won't go," Dona stated flatly. Her color was ebbing back and with it some of her old fire.

"Sam! Come and get this gal and take her on ahead to her old man!" Swergin bellowed.

Dona looked into the cylinders of the coil she held. They were empty! She faced Swergin and her words lashed out. "If Ball is injured while you are bringing him in I'll sign a murder complaint against you and your men!"

Swergin reached out and chuckled her under the chin with a thick, dirty finger. "Sam! Get this little spitfire out of here," he yelled.

Sam was a beefy fellow with a matted beard and bleary eyes. Dona had never seen him at camp. Now he thumped into the cabin and caught her roughly by the arm. Half-dragging her, he made his way outside.

Realizing the hopelessness of resistance Dona mounted the black mare and rode away at a trot.

WILL CONTROL OIL BURNERS

Control of gravity feed oil burners for stoves and furnaces will be taken by the City Council as a matter of precaution against fire.

On recommendation of the fire wardens' committee the council yesterday evening decided to have a by-law prepared which will restrict use of such type of burners, except for demonstration purposes to an area defined as follows: Starting at water-front at Telegraph Street, Herald Street, North Park Street, to Quadra Street, to Pandora Avenue, to Vancouver Street, to Fort Street to Quadra Street, to Broughton Street to Blanshard Street to Humboldt Street to the waterfront from the Causeway to the foot of Herald Street. This conforms nearly with the number one fire limits. Permit fees and inspection charges ranging from $1.50 to $3 are proposed.

Uncle Wiggily's Snow Shoes

By HOWARD R. GARIS

Uncle Wiggily, who was visiting Mr. Twistytail, the sick pig gentleman, looked out of the window at the falling snowflakes.

"Is it very deep, Mr. Twistytail?" asked Mr. Longears. For the pig lady, as I told you in the story last night, had just come in after having been to the drug store to bring her husband some cough medicine.

"Yes, Mr. Longears, it is very deep snow," she squeaked. "I don't see how you can wade through it to get back to your bungalow. But I am glad of it," she said with a smile.

"Glad of it?" cried the rabbit gentleman. "Do you mean you are glad that I am going to get stuck in the snow?"

"Oh no, not that," answered the pig lady with a laugh. "But I am glad you will have to stay here with us and keep Twisty company. He is always so cross when he has a cold and must stay in. If you are here with him he'll be much happier."

"That's what I will, Wiggy," grunted the fat pig gentleman. "I am glad you are here to keep me company. But as for being cross when I have a cold, nonsense! I'm always jolly! Ha! Ha! Ha! Tra, la la!" sang the pig.

"Well, you are jolly enough now," admitted his wife, "but you wouldn't be if Mr. Longears were not here. However, here he is and here he must stay until the storm stops and paths are shoveled so he can get home, so we must make the best of it and be very welcome to stay as long as he likes."

"Oh, I'm sure it's very kind of you to say that," said the bunny gentleman with a smile. "But my wife and Nurse Jane don't know where I am. They don't know I came here. And Nurse Jane warned me about going out in the storm this morning. She said the snow was too deep."

"Well, it really is now," said the pig lady. "Though it wasn't deep when you started out. But make the best of it. Play another game of checkers with Twisty and I'll make you both some cabbage lemonade."

"That will be nice," agreed Mr. Longears. "But I had better telephone my wife or Nurse Jane and let them know I am here and may have to stay all night."

"Sorry, but you can't do that," said the pig lady.

"Why not?" asked Uncle Wiggily. "Because our telephone is broken," was the answer. "You can't talk over it, Mr. Longears."

"Oh, then I surely must hop to my bungalow, snow or no snow!" exclaimed the rabbit gentleman. "I must let my wife or Nurse Jane know where I am or they will worry. So will my little bunnies. I think I can hop through the snow, deep as it is."

"No, Wiggy, you can't," hoarsely grunted the pig gentleman. "If I could only walk ahead of you, or roll along the ground, I am so big and heavy and fat, I could flatten down the snow and make a path. If you hopped out into the snow now it is so deep that it would be over your head."

"Indeed it would!" agreed the lady pig.

"So I think I'd better put on my overcoat and go out and ask a path for you," said Mr. Twistytail. "It won't take me long—er—kerchoo! Ker-foo Heck! Heck! Up!" and he coughed and sneezed and he got up out of his warm easy chair.

"Twisty" cried his wife, "you're not going to stir a step out of this house! The idea of you, with such a cold, talking of going out in the snow! I know you want to be kind and help Uncle Wiggily to get home, but you can't roll a path for him!"

"Then how am I to get through the deep snow to my bungalow?" asked the rabbit gentleman. "I can't stay here, kind as you are. I must find some way of getting through the deep snow."

"I know a way!" suddenly said the pig lady.

"How?" asked her husband and Uncle Wiggily at the same time.

"I'll make Mr. Longears some snow shoes," said the pig lady. "You can help, Twisty. On snow shoes Uncle Wiggily can walk over the deep drifts and get home without sinking in up to his nose. Just wait! I'll show you how to make snow shoes!"

And what happened next I'll tell you in the story to-morrow night which will be about Uncle Wiggily's snow cave. And I hope the saw horse will give the Boy Scout hatchet a ride around the block before it cuts the stick off the lollipop.

How much "waste heat" are you paying for?

IN an exhaustive series of tests at Ottawa, Canadian scientists found Coke gave the best results in a domestic furnace. They actually proved that, ton for ton, Coke contained more "usable heat" than any other fuel.

When you read about B.T.U.'s (British Thermal Units) remember that it is only part of the true story. "Usable heat" ... heat that finds its way into your rooms ... is what really counts.

This chart tells the story:

When you burn the new "Ovenized" Coke you lose less heat up the chimney than you would with any other fuel; less through unburnt gases; less through moisture, and less in unburnt fuel than from any other hard fuel available. Remember these points when you next need fuel. Order a ton of this new, superior domestic fuel at only ... $10.75 PER TON!

"V" HOUSEHOLD COURSE OPENS

Twenty-six Girls Being Taught Art of Practical, Economical Housewifery

If Experiment Success, Another May Be Held Later; For Jobless

Twenty-six jobless girls, all animated by the desire to gain practical experience in household work with a view to equipping themselves to take positions as household helpers, gathered at the Y.W.C.A. yesterday morning for the opening session of the month's course arranged by the institution.

The girls, all young and bright and keenly enthusiastic at the prospect of improving their lot, were carefully chosen out of the forty who made application for the free course. It was at first intended to take only twenty girls for the course, but it was found possible to enlarge the class. Should the course, which has been arranged as an experiment in an endeavor to help solve the problem of the single unemployed girl, prove a success, it is possible that there will be another course arranged later in the spring.

Yesterday's lessons opened at 10 a.m., when the girls were formally welcomed and introduced to the staff, after which Mrs. M. G. Moore of the Y.W.C.A. gave the first lesson in the preparation of cooking and serving of breakfast. In the afternoon Miss Ethel Thornley, head nurse of the V.O.N., gave a general health talk, emphasizing principles of hygiene and health. This was followed from 3 till 4 by a talk on household management by Mrs. N. A. Cook.

Realizing that many of the homes in which they are destined to take positions later on may lack the most up-to-date facilities and equipment, the course had been specially arranged to teach the girls the use of ordinary equipment and the most economical household management. But this will also be supplemented by several lessons in the use of the very latest electrical gadgets, kindly arranged by the B.C. Electric Co. so that the girls may have the fullest knowledge of the proper care and use of such equipment.

It is again emphasized that while the "V" has arranged this course with a view to raising the status of domestic help and thus encouraging the best type of girls to look upon household science as a profession, it is hoped that household management will be recognized this attempt to raise the standard.

Applications for the services of the girls at the end of the course should be made to the Y.W.C.A., but H. Crisford, superintendent of the Provincial Employment Bureau, 1001 Langley Street.

SEATTLE MAYOR GREET'S AMEE

Evangelist to Hold Debate With Atheist in Sound City

Seattle, Jan. 15.—The colorful Aimee Semple McPherson, leaving her marital difficulties behind her in California and "well prepared" for battle, said, came here yesterday to open a debate tour with a nationally-known atheist, Charles L. Smith.

"I am an evangelist, not a debater, and I have never heard nor seen Smith," she said.

"It's a new performance for me. I shall put everything I can command into my debates."

She displayed "evidence" that she said she would use. The debate subjects on her two nights here, to-night and to-morrow, will be "There is No God" and "Evolution is an Unproved Theory and its Teaching Should Be Banned From the Public Schools."

The "evidence" included a scroll of charts, skulls and jawbones of prehistoric animals, a basket of bones, and a gigantic figure of an ape.

"They are reproductions of exhibits in the American museum and other museums," she said. "Atheism is based on evolution, so I should use evolution's best arguments, shouldn't I?"

She was met on her arrival by Mayor John F. Dore and presented the keys to the city. Her maid, her personal representative and a property man, accompanied her.

"I think the reason I entered these debates," she continued, "was to arouse people to the menace of atheism to the young. It is worse than snailpox. It is permeating our schools."

CONDITIONS IN RUSSIA BAD

Says Lecturer of Visit There in 1932; Refused Re-admission

Canadian Press

Saint John, N.B., Jan. 16.—"The peasant people of Russia were neither contented nor happy as I saw them during the months of July to November in 1932," Miss Ella Smith declared here before starting on a lecture tour in Canada. After describing to a London audience her experience of that period in Russia, Miss Smith was refused re-admission to the country.

While in Russia, Miss Smith said, she endeavored to learn facts without prejudice, and her experiences—so undervalued by her health—she spent several months recuperating in England. Offended by her lecture before the Royal Institute of International Affairs in London, the Soviet government refused to allow her return. The editor of The New Statesman, a strongly socialist publication, described the lecture as "a grim picture, but convincing."

LUGGED WITH FARMERS

Starting with a tea party at the home of Madame Litvinoff, wife of the Soviet foreign minister, Miss Smith's survey underwent transition to hardship in rural districts. Accompanied by an interpreter, she lodged from four to eight days with a peasant farmer in some central market town of each Soviet state.

Letters of introduction from the heads of two great farm organizations were invaluable and even provided access to official statistics. Miss Smith carried food supplies from Moscow, and was able to purchase more at shops reserved for foreigners, but she encountered semi-starvation and other hardships.

Judging from her observations, said Miss Smith, the Soviet programme had failed in so far as betterment of conditions among the peasantry was concerned.

ARRANGED IN GERMANY

Miss Smith later traveled through Germany, Austria, Hungary and Czechoslovakia. In Germany she was arranged before a police court for taking photographs of demonstrations in a public square. She had a chat with Noel Penner, young English journalist, who was deported from Germany because of his articles.

Miss Smith also conversed with President Masaryk and his minister of foreign affairs in Czechoslovakia, and Prince Starhemberg, leader of the home defence party in Austria. "But my most valuable interviews were gleaned from those whose names were withheld," she added.

BIG OPERATION IS SUCCESSFUL

Baby Sue Trammell Recovering From Water on the Brain

Associated Press

Baltimore, Jan. 16.—Completely recovered from a dangerous brain operation for which she was rushed by plane from Houston, Tex., to Baltimore, six-month-old Baby Sue Trammell had left for home by train today.

"The operation was a complete success, and we are all so happy," said the baby's mother, Mrs. W. B. Trammell. The baby and her relatives had boarded a plane at Houston on December 27 for what they believed to be a race with death. At the controls of the chartered plane was Jimmie Wedell, noted speed pilot. The party made the 1,400-mile trip in eleven hours, and shortly afterward Dr. Walter E. Dandy, noted brain surgeon, operated for a condition resulting from hydrocephalus, or water on the brain.

Mother! when a cold strikes it's no time for experiment

... it's time for Vicks VapoRub

The PROVED Method of Treating Colds ... EXTERNALLY!

Mothers in 70 countries agree that Vicks VapoRub is best for children's colds. Being applied externally, VapoRub is safe. It avoids the risks of those digestive upsets which so often follow constant internal dosing. VapoRub can be used freely and as often as needed, even on the youngest child. And it's equally good, of course, for the colds of grown-ups.

Famous Poultice-Vapor Action

Just rubbed on throat and chest at bedtime, VapoRub works all through the night to relieve the cold—by stimulation and inhalation. Through the skin, it "draws out" tightness and soreness. At the same time, its medicated vapors are inhaled direct to irritated air-passages. By morning, almost always, the worst of the cold is over.

Used in over 70 Countries

HEADS U.S. WORKERS' EDUCATIONAL BUREAU

By JULIA BLANSHARD

Washington, Jan. 16.—For the first time in history, the U.S. government is taking an active interest in workers' education. If the workers are to take their place in building up the country, then of course they need enough background to do it intelligently. That's the theory behind this new move.

So a National Workers' Education Bureau has been established and the one woman in the country who knows most about workers' education has been brought down here to head it. She is Hilda Worthington Smith, for years director of the Bryn Mawr Summer School for Women Workers, before that, dean of Bryn Mawr.

LONG INTERESTED IN LABOR

It was in 1921 that President Thomas of Bryn Mawr College came home from a trip abroad realizing the needless waste of having all those lovely Bryn Mawr buildings empty during the summer months, when the country contained so many thousands of young workers who could never know the pleasure of college life.

Knowing Miss Smith's abilities and her interest, President Thomas asked her to direct the first summer school in 1922. To it came girls from clothing factories, cigar factories, box factories, girls who worked in millinery, shoes, fur, waitresses and other workers, 100 altogether, each carefully chosen for her personal ability, for her interest in her labor union, for her latent possibilities of leadership.

RESULTS AT SUMMER SCHOOL

The whole theory of this first Workers' Summer School, which has been the pattern of all other experiments, was to give the worker-students something that they could take back to their fellow workers.

Since then, every summer Bryn Mawr has had its workers' summer school, always with Hilda Worthington Smith leading it. And the best possible proof of its efficacy is that a poll of summer students during the first seven years shows that four-fifths of those attending went right back into their old industries to function all the more efficiently there with their fellow workers.

Now at her desk in Washington, Miss Smith is planning a national campaign for workers' education. "Social science is the backbone of workers' education," she said. "We must train teachers to meet the workers' needs for work in English, science, current economic problems and all those things that are closely related to the daily life of workers."

CLASSES IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

"Certain sections of the country already are demanding teachers in other sections, we'll have to awaken the workers' interest in classes. In Philadelphia, for example, there are 40,000 new union members and many unions are asking for teachers of economics, history, government, legislation and social problems."

"We will work through the State superintendent of education, and all classes will be held in public schools. Moreover, we will use unemployed teachers and hope to have training courses for them, in co-operation with colleges, universities and workers' committees."

"Two hundred or more classes are under way in fifty-six cities, which, of course, are industrial centers. In addition they are also planning one-day institutes for workers in communities in nearby towns. We are planning a handbook on workers' education, defining the field of this new type of education."

"Now that the government is genuinely interested in workers' education, the success and scope of our department is wholly dependent upon the interest and requests workers all over the United States show in this field. We hope that each day will see increasing requests pour in upon state superintendents or local school boards, or even come into our office here."

Winnipeg, Jan. 16.—For some muscular Lochinvar of the prairies, opportunity is not only knocking, but is actually pounding away at his door. A local newspaper carries the plaintive plea of an Ottawa maid, identified only by a box number in the newspaper office and searching for some be-man of the west to make her his loving wife.

To make the entreaty more forceful the young lady penned the following verse:

Dear Editor, I tap these modest keys
To put in words a maiden's modest prayer.
I dwell in Ottawa, a city where
Stenographers like me are thick as peas;
But, oh, the swains! We try so hard to please,
Yet waste our sweetness on the desert air;
Romance flies shrieking from an office chair;
Toward you West I turn on bended knees.
Seeking the tall he-man meant for me.
I'm freshly in my twenties. Full of life
And good to look at, soft and warm to touch.
Some lonely bachelor these lines may see
And through them soon acquire a loving wife.
Kind Editor, I thank you very much.

Moving Picture of 1910 to Be Feature at Metropolitan Anniversary

The seventy-fifth anniversary of Metropolitan United Church will be fittingly commemorated during the week of February 11 to 19 with a number of outstanding events. One of the most interesting and colorful will be the presentation of an historical pageant depicting the organization of the first church, and the growth of the work of the church during the years down to the present day. This will be given on Thursday and Friday, Feb. 15 and 16, in the church auditorium. Miss E. Cameron is directing the production.

A special feature will be the showing of moving picture film taken of the Methodist General Conference held in Metropolitan Church in 1910. Among the outstanding persons shown on the picture are the late Sir Richard McBride, Dr. D. Chown, Dr. A. Carman. This film was the first one completed in Canada. It is also quite revealing as to the fashions of that day, especially the ladies' hats.

British Columbia Owner Seeks to Win Caliente Handicap

R. Gellately's Craig Park Is Rated Strong Contender for Stake

Raymond Union Jacks Off to Good Start in Alberta Cage Sport

WHEN THE $25,000 Agua Caliente handicap is run on Sunday, March 18, British Columbia racing followers will have an added incentive as a thoroughbred owner by a Vancouver breeder will be in the field. The Canadian entry will be Craig Park, owned by R. Gellately. The horse, bred in England, arrived recently at the Mexican track and is now being conditioned for the rich stake. The thoroughbred, a giant in size, dark brown in color, and a fiery gentleman with blood in his eye is being rated a strong contender for the event.

Because of Craig Park's huge dimensions it was necessary to move his express car from Caliente back to the United States border where a flat car was pushed up against the steel railroad car. Craig Park, too tall to make his exit from the side door, was led through an end door onto the flat car, and thence marched onto the unloading platform. Railroad employees do not recall a similar instance in years. Craig Park is a seven-year-old stallion, by Craig in Eran, a noted English winner getter, and from a mare called Cup Tie, which goes direct to Sceptre.

Craig Park's 1933 record on the British turf follows: Starts, twelve; first, three; second, three; third, two. His last start in England was on October 21, 1933, and resulted in a victory for him over the famous Newmarket course. This winning race was the Lord Osborne Handicap, at a mile and five sixteenths. A more notable 1933 victory for the horse was in the Whip, historic racing event that has been renewed since 1764 and is said to be the oldest racing trophy in existence. Craig Park won this long distance test in brilliant fashion. In this race, as in others, he carried the silk of Lord Harwood, his owner.

Basil Jarvis, perhaps best-known of all English trainers, described Craig Park and added him to his principal races. Jarvis will be recalled as the man who trained Papyrus. Trainers who are looking after the horse at Caliente state he is settling down quickly in his new quarters and seems to be a horse of good disposition.

Raymond Union Jacks, last year's Alberta basketball champions, who were beaten here by the Victoria Blue Ribbons in the western Canada finals, are off to another good season, according to reports from a Alberta province. The Jacks, opening defence of their provincial crown, have handed Arnold Henderson's University of Alberta squad two crushing setbacks. The Jacks are using practically the same line-up that performed here last spring. The team for the first game against Alberta Varsity was as follows: Nilsson, Rolfe and Cooper, guards; O'Brien, Kirkham, Nalder, West and Fairbanks, forwards.

From the time of the famed Wanderer of the old days, every winter Bill Dowell has been at the helm of Montreal's professional and amateur hockey teams and for all visiting National Hockey League teams. Bill has sharpened the blades of such skaters as Harry Mummery, Art Ross, the Patricks—Lester and Frank; Didier Pitre, Jack Laviolette, Georges Vézina, and others, all of whom names were by words in the hockey world a generation ago.

And a delicate art it is. The brilliant stars of the fastest game in the world require perfection on their blades. They averse, dodge, twist and speed over the ice. They are artists. But so is old Bill an artist. For the perfection of finish to a skate means everything to a player. Each player requires him own degree of "rocking," the curve on the blade to allow him to turn quickly.

Dowell is familiar with all the peculiarities of players in the National Hockey League. He knows Kilrea, Toronto speedball, is the only player who has a special edge, according to Bill. He uses a "gliding edge," that is his skate are given a smoother finish to allow him to skid as he stops instead of stopping abruptly. Lionel Conacher, Chicago Hawk, uses the flattest skates in the league, while Howie Morenz, King Clancy, Neil Stewart, Teddy Graham, Jimmy Ward and Charlie Conacher employ the most rockered blades.

Nels Crutchfield, star forward with McGill University, in the Montreal senior group, wants "lots of skate at the toe." To quote Bill, Crutch uses this to get drive for his start and for cutting corners faster. Bill cites the case of Joe Marks, who used to play with the old Quebec team. Joe had the toe of his skates ground to points so he could run on them.

Toronto Provides Leading Features Of Many Surprises

Leafs Capture Majority of Honors at Halfway Point; Several Upsets

OTTAWA YOUTHS ARE BRILLIANT

Toronto, Jan. 16.—The cold, cold figures which come from the office of President Frank Calder or the National Hockey League permit you to lay down the superlatives at the half-way mark in the two-division race like this:

The strongest team in the league is Toronto Maple Leafs.

The best marksman is Charlie Conacher of the Leafs.

The most-penalized player is Red Horner of the Leafs.

The least-penalized player among the top scorers is Joe Primeau of the Leafs. He hasn't been penalized at all yet.

Leading all defencemen in point-making is King Clancy of the Leafs.

The Leafs have won more games than any of the rest, scored more goals, lost fewer than any other team—these from the cold, cold figures.

The fun of it all is that when these Leafs have paraded into the league play-offs in March, having accumulated all these stirring facts, they will toe the Stanley Cup mark with five other teams that shuffled up to the real starting point with much less momentum. It has been established that these five are highly dangerous along in March.

OTHER HIGHLIGHTS

Even the early successes have not all belonged to the Conny Smythe-Dick Irvin brigade. Some high-class doings have been taking place elsewhere to make up for some surprising flops.

Some of the features, bright and otherwise: Earl Roche's fast getaway in goal-getting with Ottawa Senators that seems to have wended him on the back stretch.

Charlie Gardiner's superlative goal-tending for Chicago Black Hawks. In twenty-four games he has permitted twenty-eight goals. Andy Aitkenhead of New York Rangers is next, having allowed thirty-nine.

The brilliant work of the freshmen from Niagara Falls, Max Kaminsky and Jerry Shannon, with Ottawa.

The fact Howie Morenz has scored only six goals in twenty-five games.

Little Rabbit McVeigh's smashing rise to unusual stardom for the New York Americans in his thirteenth big-league season.

The slump of Boston's Bruins, not a very strong outfit at all without Eddie Shore.

Bill Cook slumps.

The mediocrity of the Cook-Boucher line of Rangers and especially Bill Cook's drop from the heights of Johnny Sorelli's first-month scoring spurt, which appears to have been well stopped.

Chicago's spirited campaign with Gardiner and Lionel Conacher playing the starring roles.

The very ordinary work of Dit Clapper, once a dynamite trio ace. He used to rack up goals four at a piece. He has counted two this season.

EDDIE SHORE NOT ALLOWED TO SEE "ACE"

Boston Player Refused Permission to Visit Injured Toronto Hockeyist

Boston, Jan. 16.—A ban, aimed specifically at him, kept Eddie Shore, Boston Bruins hockey player, from visiting Irvin "Ace" Bailey at the City Hospital yesterday. It was Shore's second attempt to see the Toronto player who was injured several weeks ago when he was knocked to the ice during a game in Boston.

On Saturday, Shore was refused permission to visit Bailey, and he telephoned the hospital yesterday and asked that he be permitted to visit Bailey to tell him that he regretted the accident. He was told he could not see him.

Dr. Donald Munro, the surgeon who operated on Bailey, was confined to his home by illness and his secretary talked with Shore. Later she said that Dr. Munro had told her that Shore was not to be admitted to the room where Bailey is convalescing. She admitted that her orders specified Shore. Asked if it was believed that a visit from Shore might cause Bailey to have a relapse, she said the Toronto player was in a normal condition and there was no danger of a relapse.

Bailey suffered severe fractures of his skull and for several days his life was despaired of.

Varsity Sending Formidable Team For Track Events

U.B.C. Announces Definite Squad For Indoor Contest at Armories on Friday

BILL STOTT TO LEAD SPRINTERS

To match speed and field talent against the pick of Victoria's athletes, Varsity will send a squad of nine or ten men of outstanding merit to compete in the Kiwanis-sponsored invitational indoor meet at the Armories on Friday evening.

Announcement of the U.B.C. team was made in a letter received by Archie McKinnon of the Y.M.C.A. to-day.

Bill Stott will lead the sprinters from Varsity against such men as Joe Addison, Herb Barclay, and others. He is scheduled for the fifty-yard dash and probably one other race. Ron Heron, Don McTavish, Stewart and Joe Roberts are listed for duty in the other sprints. Stott, McTavish and Heron are figured close to ten second men for the hundred, running under 10.5 consistently over the century route.

Heron and McTavish are slated for the four hundred, in which they are credited with times of twenty-three and one-half seconds. In the quarter, Stewart, president of the University's men's athletics, is figured a certain starter, along with Joe Roberts, one of McKinnon's star Y.M.C.A. sprinters during the summer time. Stewart is reported to be doing the quarter in about fifty-three seconds, while Roberts is rated here as one of the best in Victoria over the shorter distances.

BRINGING GOOD JUMPERS

At last year's British Columbia Junior Olympics, Heron, who is scheduled for the broad jump, cleared the ground for a distance of twenty-two feet and has been jumping consistently at twenty-one, while the Varsity high jumpers have been clearing the stick at five foot six.

Martin and Agnew are slated for that event in the coming meet and will probably give some keen competition to Art and Chuck Chapman, who will fly the local colors.

H. W. Agnew and McCannan, a freshman, who put the shot around thirty-six feet, will be tossing the weight for the visitors.

One of Chuck Cunningham's old rivals, Herb Barclay, who ran the Victoria star a good race at the Caledonia Games last summer and who is capable of about two minutes three seconds for the eight-eighty, is billed to run in the half-mile for the visitors.

Reports of the enthusiasm of the U.B.C. team indicate an exceptionally keen duel for honors in the event which will bring together some of the finest track material in the province.

SCORES KNOCKOUT

Preston, Idaho, Jan. 16.—Tiger Jack Fox, 172, Terre Haute, Ind., knocked out Battling Lamoreaux, 175, Preston, Idaho, in the third round of a ten-round bout here yesterday evening.

The Preston fighter was on the canvas for five counts in the first and second rounds, before he stopped a final sizzling right to the jaw shortly after the opening of the third.

Syracuse, N.Y., Jan. 16.—Steve Halako, Auburn, knocked out Eddie Dempsey, Syracuse, in 2:40 of the fourth round of a six-round main bout at the arena here yesterday evening.

CREAVY WINS TOURNEY

San Francisco, Jan. 16.—Running down punts from five to thirty feet with ease, Tom Creavy, twenty-two-year-old pro from Albany, N.Y., won the fourth annual San Francisco national match play open golf championship here yesterday, defeating Jim Thomson, Long Beach, Cal., 3 and 2, in the thirty-six-hole final.

The youngster, who first broke into prominence in 1930 as runner-up in the P.G.A. championship, and a year later became the holder of the title, turned on one of the finest golfing performances ever witnessed here to capture first money. He used only twenty-nine punts during the morning round.

A gallery of nearly 3,000 fans saw the struggle.

At the ninth, Creavy was 5 up. He had a 32, three under par, to Thompson's 37. But the positions were reversed on the second nine. Creavy had an approximate 33 to Creavy's par 37. As winner, Creavy received $811 of the $4,000 prize money.

DAVIES BOYS WILL REMAIN BEYOND PALE

Two Well-known Vancouver Bike Riders Cannot Return to Amateur Ranks

Toronto, Jan. 16.—Plans for the representation of Canadian racing bicyclists at the British Empire Games, next summer, were laid over during the week-end at the fifty-second annual meeting of the Canadian Wheelman's Association. Selection of representatives will be made later.

Election of officers was the main business of the convention. John H. Smith, holder of the Canadian racing championship thirty-five years ago, was elected to the presidency, succeeding Robert Falconer, Toronto, while Albert E. Humphrey was the choice for the vice-presidency, and E. M. Fear of Weston, succeeded Russell E. Coupland as secretary.

Delegates went on record as favoring an immediate adoption of an entirely new constitution. The Canadian amateur championships will be held at the Canadian National Exhibition, while Ontario will apply for the fifty-mile Canadian championship.

Refusal of applications for reinstatement as amateurs by Jimmie and Harold Davies, Vancouver, was recommended by A. J. Douglas, Vancouver, branch chairman of British Columbia, and the meeting continued.

BONSPIEL IS IN PROGRESS

Vancouver Rinks Do Well in Opening Day's Play of Events at Revelstoke

Revelstoke, Jan. 16.—Vancouver rinks were in the running in most of the competitions yesterday evening after the first day's play in the Okanagan and Interior Curling Association bonspiel. Cornell lost in the W. A. Rogers won, 13 to 12, on the last end. Paterson, Revelstoke, beat David in another close finish, 13 to 12.

Rinks are in attendance from Vancouver (four), Golden, Salmon Arm, Armstrong, Kelowna and Pelly, the latter being represented by the picturesque Laird Dunwaters.

The Vancouver rinks won easily in the Malkin Cup play, scores being as follows:

Dunsmuir, 10; Burrigle, Revelstoke, 4; Crowe, 16; Strong, Revelstoke, 3; Dunsmuir, 15; McRae, Revelstoke, 5.

The most exciting game of the day was played between the Revelstoke and Dunwaters, Pelly, when Sturdy lay two at the last end to win after being one down. As the result of the win, Sturdy advanced to the fours in the W. A. Rogers.

Mild weather late Saturday afternoon threatened to disrupt the bonspiel, but colder weather Sunday saved the situation. Snow was falling yesterday evening.

Can Wallflower Who Has Reached the Age Of Twenty-seven Hope to Find Husband? How Can Widower Avoid Gossip?

DEAR MISS DIX--They say there is a law of averages. Well, that law must have been vetoed long ago so far as I am concerned. I have always been out of luck, and now at twenty-seven I wonder if my life and good times are over without my ever having had them. I had a good position that I had held for years, but I lost it through the depression and have not been able to get another job. Even from a little girl I was always a wallflower, though I am far from homely. As the oldest of nine children whose mother is dead I do all of the housework, and in the evenings sit alone watching my more popular sisters and brothers leave on their various dates. I ache to dance, to be gay, to flirt and have a little fun. I want someone of my very own to love and love me. Is there anyway out for me?

LUCILLE.

Answer--I do not think that there is any tragedy greater than that of the girl who is condemned by a cruel fate to sit on the sidelines and watch the gay procession of youth go by without her, while she is eating out her heart in her desire to be in the thick of it. She wants to play. She wants to laugh and make merry. Her feet ache to dance. She longs for love, and no lad wants to play with her or dance with her or steal a kiss from her.

Why some girls have no attraction for men, nobody on earth can explain. It is just one of the unfortunates of nature. It isn't because a girl lacks beauty or intelligence or social graces and accomplishments. She may have all of the desirable qualities. She may be a good-looking, dress beautifully, be entertaining and amusing, and still never have a date. Or she may be homely as a mud fence, look like a human ragbag or be a Dumb Dora, with never a word to say for herself, and still have beaux galore.

It is just a matter of sex appeal that is bestowed upon some girls and withheld from others, and if a girl has it, she has it, and if she lacks it, it is just too bad, and there is nothing that she can do about it. For it is one of the things that cannot be made, imitated or acquired in any way.

This is cold comfort for the girl who is passed over, but it always seems to me that the wisest thing and the best thing for us, in the long run, is just to face the truth about ourselves and shape our lives according to the stern facts in the case, instead of brooding ourselves with row dreams that haven't a chance of being fulfilled, and wearing out our souls in longing for the things we can never have.

So, when a girl of twenty-seven finds herself at home alone of an evening while her younger sisters step out, she will be happier if she gives up the struggle for dates and masculine society and sets about constructing herself an Adamesque Eden, in which she is quite as likely to live a comfortable and pleasant life as her married sister does in a little two-by-four flat.

For, after all, not every sweetheart makes a good, reliable husband who is tender and kind to his wife. Not every marriage is a dream of bliss, and many and many a woman married to a grumpy man and with a lot of children underfoot and worrying over where the rent is to come from, envies her unmarried sister who has a good job.

So my advice to you, Lucille, is to just forget all about the drug-store cowboys and imitation shells who take your sisters out to the movies and to dances, and concentrate all of your thoughts and energies on getting back your old job. A career is a mighty good substitute for a husband. Fill your thoughts with your work and you will find contentment and peace.

And don't forget this, that often a girl who is not attractive to boys makes a hit with older men, especially with widowers who have sense enough to value something else in a woman besides her ability to thrill them. Very often the woman who has been a wallflower as a girl makes a brilliant match in her thirties.

DEAR MISS DIX--I am a widower. I loved my wife dearly and grieved at her passing, but sitting in sackcloth and ashes is not helping me to live the life left me. I have two small children and my interest is in them, but I feel the need of companionship and would enjoy taking some nice woman to dinner, a show or a movie now and then, but if I ever tip my hat to a single woman or a widow it immediately starts a gabble among the women of our street. What can I do about it?

Answer--Nothing, except to disregard it and step out with a woman whenever you feel like it. Every widower is every gossip's meat.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD By William Ferguson

ANTARCTICA is still the largest geographical mystery on the surface of the earth. Geographers are not certain that it is one large continent. It may be made up of smaller islands. Many of its secrets will yield to the ever challenging explorer, but it is probable the Antarctic will still be a land of mystery a hundred years from now.

After eighteen years in the service of the city, James Barf, the building inspector, will retire at the end of March. Applications for the post will be called immediately. The City Council decided yesterday evening in accepting the request of Mr. Barf for superannuation. Mr. Barf was to have retired last year, but remained in the civil service at the request of the council. Mr. Barf entered the employ of the city in 1912 as assistant building inspector. After serving three years he went overseas and served until 1919. On his return he was appointed building and plumbing inspector, which post he has held to the present time. Another change in the staff announced yesterday evening was in the post of the telephone exchange operator, who will leave at the end of January. Applications will be called for this position.

SALT SPRING IMPORTS DEER

Pulford Harbor, Jan. 16.—Six of the eight fallow deer brought here through the agency of T. Walker, game warden on James Island, where they were bred, and transported here by J. H. Lee and his son by launch, have been turned loose on the property of T. M. Jackson at the base of Mount St. Helens. Two of the deer, found to be in a weak state, are being cared for by Mr. Jackson and will be released when they recover. The new species, when fully grown, are larger than the Blacktail which roam this island. The animals are descendants of the fallow deer which were imported to James Island from Great Britain some thirty years ago.

GROUP WORK IS SKETCHED

Ministers Testify to Benefits of Oxford Movement Teachings in City

Testifying to the manner in which association with the Oxford Group Movement had changed their personal experiences and brought about within them a new hope in life, seven ministers, representing various denominations, yesterday evening addressed a gathering in First Baptist Church. Dean Quinlan was the chairman, opening the meeting with the assurance that his faith in the movement remained after twelve months' contact with it. No other movement could surpass it in evangelical enterprise or results, he said. There had been a glut of oratory, but the movement had actually brought results in Victoria, and there was plenty of evidence of Christ's power to change human lives, he asserted.

There had been remarks to the effect that the clergy did not need the movement, but the Dean thought they needed it as much as anybody else. "You wouldn't tell an athlete to stop practicing because they achieved a certain measure of success," he said. "FICKED HIM UP"

One of the greatest things the group had done with him had been to knock the self-centredness out of him and make him realize his shortcomings and pride. The beauty of it had been that after knocking this out of him it had "picked him up again" and given him new hope.

Rev. F. F. Church described the movement as the greatest physician of souls and had opened his inner life so that for the first time he was able to see what it was like. It had revealed him in utter need, amid evil sin and poverty and now he felt God could help him as never before.

Rev. J. M. Hughes had been given the power to do things he had never done before by the group teachings. He knew he should have done these things but he never had the courage. The quiet time had assisted him in being alone and peaceful.

LOVE AND EXONERATION
The group had served to bring men, women and children closer to Christ than anything Rev. A. deB. Owen had ever seen. When first approaching it he had been in a critical frame of mind but he had found it so full of the spirit of Jesus that he felt it was actually making the different denominations love each other.

Rev. F. Conley was now able to do a lot of things he had been unable to perform before. He had first been attracted by the work of the group in bringing together the Boers and the British in South Africa.

Since undertaking the group's teachings, Rev. G. A. Reynolds had discovered that the real work of Christ was not to preach wonderful sermons but to link human souls to God in order that they might become mirrors of His greatness. He thanked the movement for the fact that he could now be nearer to God's presence and be natural at last.

The movement had served to bring those it contacted much closer together than anything else, in the opinion of Rev. H. P. S. Luttrell. This was evident to such an extent that he now felt there was real unity between the denominations. It had been an assurance to him that religion was not dead.
